We named this ship

New luxury cruiser christened in Royal Greenwich

THIS magnificent cruise ship sailed up the Thames through Royal Greenwich for its official naming ceremony last Thursday.

Twenty-eight sailors manned the yard-arm of the Cutty Sark in traditional naval style to welcome the huge vessel ahead of its official christening.

Though officially classed as a small cruise ship, the Viking Sea is the largest ocean ship ever to be christened on the Thames.

It's the second ocean cruise ship launched by Viking Cruises and follows the arrival of its sister ship the Viking Star last March.

The 47,800-ton cruiser has 465 cabins and will take 930 passengers on tours from Scandinavia and the Baltic through to the Western and Eastern Mediterranean as well as the Caribbean and beyond.

Last Thursday, residents and visitors watched from riverside as the ship travelled through the Thames Barrier, past The O2, Canary Wharf and Greenwich Pier where it cruised past the Cutty Sark. Later that evening spectators enjoyed a firework display to celebrate the naming ceremony.

Royal borough leader Denise Hyland, said, "Greenwich's world-renowned status as a visitor destination is based strongly on our maritime heritage and helps us to attract millions of visitors each year from across the globe. The Viking Line will attract further visitors, helping to support a vital – and growing – sector of the local economy. I am delighted that Greenwich has been chosen as the location for today's launch of such a prestigious liner."

Saturday service for homeless

WEEKEND WORK: the MP meets project workers and volunteers

GREENWICH and Woolwich MP Matthew Pennycook got a first-hand look at the work of the Weekend Service Users Project (WSUP) when he visited its headquarters in Woolwich last month (April 23).

Based on Brookhill Road, the project opens its doors every Saturday to feed homeless and vulnerable local people in the local area. Service users can also have their laundry done, have a haircut or bath, get fresh clothes, have a friendly chat and take part in various activities organised by the volunteers.

WALKING FOR HEALTH: people enjoy views of local landmarks during programmed jaunts around the borough

Walk this May

by Dan Stephens

STROLL ON! People are putting their best foot forward as part of National Walking Month.

From finding out about foraging to taking a relaxing jaunt through one of the royal borough's parks, there are a range of walks and activities running this month to help residents discover the benefits of walking.

The annual campaign is run by Living Streets, a group aiming to make the streets safer, more attractive and more enjoyable.

Local events include Foraging Fortnight which will see a local forager joining some of the walks to help walkers explore edible plants and trees, and to find out what our ancestors ate in their diets.

The next two foraging walks take place on May 12 (9.30-10.30am, from the Slade Library and Children's Centre, Erindale, SE18 2QQ) and May 16 (9.45-10.45am from the café in Eltham Park South, Gleskes Road, SE9 1AG).

Greenwich Get Walking also has a full programme of free, fun and sociable health walks across the borough. The walks last between 30 to 90 minutes and all new participants throughout May will receive a free goody bag when they attend.

Greenwich Get Walking can also supply a range of walking route maps which are useful for those who want to walk independently or take friends for a walk, and a range of cycle maps that can be used as extended walking routes.

Resident David Collins discovered the pleasures and health benefits of walking after retiring from a lorry driving job three years ago. Looking to lose weight and adopt a healthier lifestyle, David began to walk as an alternative to driving.

He explained: "When I first retired, my doctor told me that I needed to exercise to lose weight – as I could no longer afford a car, I started walking. When I first started, I could walk for no more than ten minutes before I was out of breath. But I persevered and now regularly walk to all my exercise classes, and often reach 30,000 steps a day."

He added: "I joined Greenwich Get Walking in June last year and straight away got on with the group. I helped inspire the group with stories of all the places I had managed to walk and I became a volunteer walk leader at the

Step up the pace in 20 minutes

THIS year National Walking Month is encouraging everyone to fit a bit more walking into their routine. Residents can sign up to the 'Try 20' pledge, which focuses on fun and easy ways to fit 20 minutes' worth of walking in every day.

Greenwich Park walks. I love to spread the word about living a healthy lifestyle.

"Before I started walking I weighed 17 and-a-half stone, and had a 42 inch waist and high blood pressure. I now weigh 12 stone and have lost 10 inches off my waist."

Cllr David Gardner, the council's cabinet member for health, social care and public health said: "Walking Month is a great way to experience the beauty of the outdoors, and can even save on travel costs. I encourage local people to have a look at some of the upcoming walking activities and get involved this May."

Still time to switch and save

HOUSEHOLDERS could make significant savings on their energy bills by registering for the Big London Energy Switch (BLES) this month.

The energy auction is run by a number of London councils, including the royal borough. It uses collective bargaining to get energy companies to compete to offer their best prices. The more people who register for the BLES, the greater the buying power meaning a lower the price may be offered.

Royal Greenwich residents have already benefited from the BLES since it began in 2013, with over £250,000 saved by local members who switched. Last year alone, £141,000 was saved collectively by residents who signed up to the big switch.

The next auction takes place next Monday (May 16) and local people are urged to sign up by then for the chance to enjoy the potential savings. Once signed up, members receive details of the savings they could make if they accept the energy company's offer – with no obligation to accept the offer.

Local people can get further advice on the BLES at the Energy Advice Café which offers visitors friendly, independent advice about their bills over a free hot drink and a slice of cake.

Visitors are advised to take their energy bill or statement to help pinpoint where they can save money. Those who do so will receive a free £7 LED light bulb.

Run by the South East London Community Energy (SELCE), the café is open at the Woolwich Centre and is open every Monday 10am-4pm until June 13 (not Monday-Friday as reported in May 3 GT). Drop-in visitors are welcome but consultations can also be booked in advance on 020 8269 4882 or at www.selce.org.uk/energy-advice/ energy-cafe

● For further details on the BLES, visit www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/biglondonenergyswitch or call 020 8921 5100.

Health group working independently

HEALTH watchdogs for the royal borough have become an independent group run by local people.

Healthwatch Greenwich was previously managed by METRO Charity but it has now become fully independent.

The not-for-profit organisation gives residents a say about how local health and social services are run, and if and how they can be improved. It also provides information about local services and signposts residents to the support they need.

Healthwatch Greenwich will continue to be headed by the existing board of residents, supported by a small team of staff.

Chair Leceia Gordon-Mackenzie said:

"Healthwatch Greenwich will continue to represent the views of all local people by area, by need, by service. Patient involvement is crucial to improving health and social care services. "It's not enough to get the views of service users who find it easy to express themselves. We must take into account everyone, and it's exactly what an independent Healthwatch Greenwich is here to do."

Cllr David Gardner, cabinet member for health, social care & public health, thanked all those involved in achieving independence.

"Healthwatch Greenwich has played an important role in improving health and social care services in the borough and I am sure the new organisation will continue their good work," he said.

Healthwatch Greenwich is part of the Healthwatch national network, established by the government to ensure patients and users have a greater input to shaping and designing local services

Singing their praises

THE NHS choir that beat Justin Bieber to the Christmas no. 1 have signed a film deal to tell their incredible story.

The choir pipped Bieber to the top spot after he took to Twitter urging his fans to buy their single instead of his, the proceeds of which went to healthcare charities including Mind and Carers UK.

Hollywood's rights to the story have been bought by LA producer, Julia Verdin, who has worked on films such as The Merchant of Venice, with Al Pacino and 2 Jacks starring Sienna Miller. The movie will feature the 32 choir members and follow their individual stories and the journey that led them to their amazing Christmas success with 'Bridge Over Troubled Water'.

Verdin said: "I believe people will love watching this remarkable and uplifting story which has already touched the hearts of millions in the UK."

Choir coordinator and children's physiotherapist Caroline Smith said: "The singers were thrilled that the world will now get to see our incredible story. People will see the massive power achieved when everyone comes together."

The Lewisham and Greenwich Choir is made up of more than 30 full time staff including doctors, nurses, physiotherapists, psychologists and midwives. They originally entered the limelight when they appeared on Gareth Malone's BBC2 show 'Sing While You Work' where they showed it to the final.

As well as the movie deal, the choir is seeing the release of their debut album on June 3, titled 'Something Inside So Strong'. All royalties will go to the Lewisham and Greenwich NHS Trust charitable funds to help provide funding for goods, services and research which fall outside core NHS responsibility and which benefit patients and staff.

Balancing

LIBRARIANS just can't stay quiet about visitors to the new Greenwich Centre library.

The state-of-the-art library is looking forward to its first anniversary next month and staff are reporting record visitors and increased use of library services since the closure of the old East Greenwich library.

The new library is part of the new Greenwich Centre at Lamarde Square which also includes a new leisure centre, which replaced the Arches Leisure Centre, alongside council and health services.

The Greenwich Centre Library takes its place alongside the other two flagship libraries at the Woolwich Centre and Eltham Centre.

Though much loved, East Greenwich Library was in need of updating – the new library which was kitted out with brand new books, has nearly 50 computers, a computer gaming area, a large screen for films and child-friendly tablets.

In the first 10 months of opening the Greenwich Library has seen a seven fold increase in visits made to the old East Greenwich Library for the same period the year before. Even more impressive is the uptake in computer use, which has seen an astonishing 1500% increase on the same period from last year.

The improved use of library computers shows how important they are at helping local people to access council services, build skills, apply for jobs and improve their employment prospects.

Cllr Denise Scott-McDonald, cabinet member for culture, creative industries & community wellbeing said: "These figures really go to show just how important our local library facilities are and how much our investment in them makes a difference.

"People have been taking advantage of the improved facilities and the fact that the library is located on the same site as the leisure centre - so a visit to one is essentially a visit to both."

West Greenwich put on a Shakespeare display, themed games sessions and a film screening, while in the south of the borough, New Eltham laid out the crafts for children to design their

SCENE

A NEW twist to the traditional summer fete returns to Greenwich Peninsula for a second year this weekend.

The Urban Village Fete attracted more than 10,000 people to its debut last May – and the 2016 event promises to be bigger and more diverse.

Acts include a brass band playing 90s acid house music, life-sized slinkies and a DJ set by Gilles Peterson.

Maypole dancing takes on a whole new rhythm with Folk Dance Remix combining folk and hip hop dance styles with live music in a quirky, colourful blend of traditions.

There will be designer marketplaces to browse, street food stalls, art and design workshops, dance classes and a variety of pop-ups.

Activities – such as workshops as diverse as drumming, hoola hooping and making paper hats with French artist Paul Henri – will appeal to people of all ages.

And there's even the chance to spin some discs with The Charity Shop DJ.

The Urban Village Fete was conceived by designer Wayne Hemingway of Hemingway Designs, who said: "We love working on projects that change people's perceptions. We got so much great feedback from last year's Urban Village Fete. We can't wait to sample all the great street food, enjoy the performances, "shop" at those great designer makers, partake in a creative workshop or two and of course have a boogie this Sunday."

BBC Radio London's Robert Elms will be on stage hosting a series of talks on different issues and the

Frankenstein comes to Woolwich's Big Screen

CLASSIC TALE: Federico Bonelli and Steven McRae in the Royal Ballet's production of Frankenstein

MARY Shelley's Frankenstein gets the Big Screen treatment in Woolwich next week. The gothic classic is turned into a full-length ballet in a new Royal Ballet production which will be screened live on the Big Screen in General Gordon Square on Wednesday, May 18 from 7pm.

The period adaptation returns to the original themes of Shelley's novel, steering away from the horror stereotypes associated with the title and presenting a tale ultimately about love.

Fuelled by grief at the death of his mother, Victor Frankenstein does the impossible and brings life to non-living matter. Terrified by what he has created, he abandons the creature, dooming it to a life of loneliness – a decision that costs Victor his fiancée, Elizabeth, and ultimately his own life.

More BP Big Screen entertainment lies in store over the summer with Plácido Domingo singing the title role of Verdi's Nabucco on June 9 and Il Traviatore, also by Verdi, on July 14.

A GIG that becomes a performance of musical theatre comes to Woolwich next week after wowing judges at last year's Edinburgh Fringe. Weekend Rockstars won the Musical Theatre Network Development Award at the festival last summer where Greenwich Theatre executive director James Haddrell was one of the assessors. "What's so unusual about it is that you go along as if you were attending a typical music gig. The band comes on and plays a typical one-hour set, but through the course of the show the lead singer tells the story of his life slowly spiralling out of control, using narrative and projection as well as the music," he said.

Actor Josie Morley (pictured above) learned how to play the bass guitar for her role as Jenny. "It's definitely not your usual night out at the theatre," she said. "It packs a real punch and we're hoping to attract people who might not think that theatre is particularly for them." The show is produced by the Middle Child Theatre Company from Hull and James thought it would work better performed at smaller venues rather than the theatre itself. It will be on at The Tramshed in Woolwich New Road on Friday and Saturday, May 13 & 14 at 8pm. Tickets are £16, £13.50 concs. Visit www.greenwichtheatre.org.uk or call 020 8858 4447.

IMPORTANT NOTICE FOR ROYAL BOROUGH TENANTS WHO ARE MOVING

DON'T GET A BILL AFTER YOU LEAVE

Under the conditions of your tenancy agreement, you have a responsibility to leave your property in an acceptable state of repair. We may visit you to check this. If we consider your property is in an unacceptable condition, you may be prevented from moving or be recharged for work.

To avoid getting an unwelcome bill, follow these rules:

- Repair any damage caused to the property by you, your family or visitors to your home.
- Make good any changes you have made to your property e.g. put back any doors that you have removed.
- Make sure your garden is not overgrown and you have cleared all garden waste.
- Clear all your items from the inside and the outside of the property. This includes any loft space, external cupboards or sheds.
- Return all the keys to the Royal Borough's offices no later than midday on Monday (or Tuesday if it is a Bank Holiday). You will be charged a further week's rent if you do not return your keys on time.

If you leave repairs that are your responsibility, or items that require disposal you will be charged the cost of this work.

Special Collection Service

The Royal Borough offers a Special Collection Service for tenants who are moving and want to dispose of something big and bulky, like a sofa or a fridge, and even unwanted clothes and other textiles.

Simply contact Waste Services on 020 8921 4661 and tell them where you live and what you would like taken away.

Items we will collect include:

Fridges, freezers, washing machines, beds, sofas, clothes and carpets (carpets must be cut up and tied into manageable bundles that one person can carry).

Items we DO NOT collect include:

Fitted kitchens, bathroom suites, boilers, sheds, fences and rubble.

For further information, please contact Waste Services on 020 8921 4661.

League leaders in credit

ROYAL Greenwich Mayor Norman Adams accepts a £2,000 cheque on behalf of a special team of soccer players.

The money, donated by the Welling branch of Santander Bank, was presented by manager Shelley Chandler.

The pair went to the South London Special League's monthly Adult League Tournament at Long Lane Junior Football Club.

It will be used to support A League of Their Own - the adult league.

The league is having its Summer Festival at London Marathon Playing Fields on May 26 when it will be presented with money raised by former mayor Mick Hayes' charity during 2014-15.

ALL WINNERS: bank branch manager Shelley Chandler and the mayor Norman Adams offer their congratulations to tournament winners, inset, teams pose for a presentation photo

It's a chance to experience the fun of playing bowls and the opportunity to receive some free tuition. Equipment will be provided, along with tea and biscuits for bowlers. Over 50 people attended last year's event and the club expects the forthcoming open days to be even more successful.

Club captain Nigel Callaghan told GT: "If you're looking for a new challenge this summer, then lawn bowls in the Pleasaunce is just the tonic to lift your spirits. You can try out a new skill without any stress in the fresh outdoors, in peaceful and beautiful surroundings of the walled garden here. We hope residents are inspired and grab this opportunity to have a go at this gentle sport. You may surprise yourself and find that you are a natural."

The club offers local bowls sessions in Eltham. Practice games take place on various days and times, although most regular are on Saturday and Sundays.
